The Floating Debt.

The Deputies of Congress continued this debate on yesterday, commencing with Art. 2 which imported that all the debts hereby consolidated should bear no interest henceforward until the National Legislature could determine how and in what proportions they were to be satisfied. The article was ably supported by the Minister of Government and Sor. Gorostega, on the grounds that it was but just to recognize such obligations, while the confused state of the finances, together with the uncertain amount of these debts, prevented Government from proposing a fixed rate of interest, which might after wards weigh heavier on the National Exchequer.

Dr. Velez of Cordoba and Sor Oroño demonstrated that the floating debt from April 1, to December 12,1861 could not exceed 3 million 8 silver. They stated that this debt at present bore interest 18 or 24 per 100 00; that it would save the State from this burthen, if 6 p00 per annum were assigned to these Bonds, while on the other hand it would be manifestly unjust to strip the present creditors of all value by pretending to recognize them, leaving no interest or sinking-fund applicable thereto.

Sor. Marmol objected that in this floating-debt were comprised sums advanced as a loan to the so many Buenos Ayrean cow-hides, and Sr. Gorostega added that the merchants of Cordoba lent President Derqui the necessary funds for equipping his army, charging 50, and 80 p§. bonus. Sor. Velez replied that no peccadilloes could be alleged against the present holders of these vouchers, but against the ex-president whom he would now propose to accuse.

The Chamber then retired for consultation. On returning, Art. 2 was again discussed and passed by a large majority, as likewise Art 3. Horcos Dr Manuel Montesdeoca introduced an amendment "that we do not recognize as lawful debts, the moneys expended to uphold tyranny, under the late Confederation." A most violent scene was occasioned by some remarks of Sr. Marmol, 24 members trying to speak all at once, and D. Ruiz Moreno exclaiming "there is no "mashorca" in Entre-Rios." Order was at length restored, and happily after a good sense of the Chamber threw out Montesdeoca's motion by 29 votes to 6.—The floating debt thus passed safe through the lower Chamber, and will soon become law, as it has not to go before the ultra-opposition of our Provincial Chambers. It will be remarked that the Deputies for Buenos Ayres are the noisiest on all disputed points, owing to the overplus talent of which we complain.

Literature in B. Ayres

If we want to form a fair estimate of the progress of Buenos Ayres, we may look to her statistics of custom-dues; or count the many lofty edifices springing up on all sides; we may observe the prodigious development of our sheep-industry,the increased number of public-schools, the improvements of every day, the growing imitation of European customs, etc. Yet the Customs' return will show also that our imports are double our exports, and that we are going ahead too fast; the new houses will tell us that they are foreign property, and in some manner an unproductive capital in like manner the multiplication of our flocks is calculated to foster pastoral life, the rudest form of society. Even public schools are no safe criterion, for it is notorious that the middle and upper classes are wotully inferior to the same order of Europeans, in intellectual attainments. Neither can the artificial decorations of our city stand as conclusive evidence of real progress.

The literature of Buenos Ayres is the grandest element of her advancement, and affords a double proof of growing civilization. The works which have issued from the press, within the last few years, are alike remarkable for their literary merit and typographical attractions. The Celebridades Argentinas (including, by mistake, General Rivera) is a splendid volume, got up in the very best style, and compiled by some of our leading writers. The "Life of Belgrano" is also a drawing-room ornament, besides Marmol's Ana les" and the "Reports of Cañemar." Suffice it to say, that in standard literature, this city may claim precedence of any other on this continent.

In periodical publications, we cannot boast such a multitude as Montevideo, yet our half-dozen papers have probably a larger total of circulation, and possess a more solid influence. Three years ago the "Tribuna" was a small popolucho with a few hundred subscribers; to-day it is the best (*) paper in South America, with correspondents all over the globe, and circulating 4,000 sheets daily. As a proof of its popularity, neither the outrageous tachero articles nor various indecent local events have diminished its list beyond 128 names struck off in 1859, and 1860, when a new one evening print, and now it stands prominent in size, and typography, with close on three thousand supporters, although its adverse capital policy has of late diminished the number. Three years ago the English paper printed some 13 or 14 hundred copies monthly for 300 subscribers while the "Standard" now issues over 18,000 sheets, to 1,250 readers: the "Times" in 1859 was almost unknown in the camp, while our present weekly mail bag weighs 72 lbs. Three years ago there was no French paper, and an abortive attempt produced "Le Poque" for 13 days: "La Presse" is now five months in existence, has recently doubled its size, and counts 400 subscribers Two other colleagues have been born in our own days; "La Revista" with scarcely a thousand Nos. daily, and the "Nacion Argentina", boasting double that number. In fine if we credit the press returns the circulation of our six papers amounts to 12,000 whereas in 1859 it was not quite one half.

Three papers are now in the ascendant, the "Nacion Argentina", "Standard" and "Presse"; whose monthly increase rises steadily from 8 to 15 p§ Three others, the "Tribuna" "Nacional" and "Revista", the loss of the first being roughly set down by public report at 25 or even 35 p§, although this may be exaggerated. The former are all capitalist journals, the latter are by opinionists: this is the secret of their various fortunes. Meantime the great circulation of our papers in Europe tends greatly to make Buenos Ayres better and more known abroad: the influence of the Press is felt in our increased trade, new railways, arrivals of immigrants &c., for the surest indication of the growing prosperity and civilization of a country, is its literature.

Editor's Table.

News is beginning to get rather slack, and newspapers slightly insipid. The French packet is looked for with the greatest anxiety by all, as it is conceived she will bring most important news.

We commend to the attention of our English merchants, the lawsuit between Van Souhrt and Kreglinger, which we are in present writing in French. Some very important matters in mercantile law, are decided, and as the subject matter in dispute arose in this country, and both plaintiff and defendant are well known here, it may interest our readers

Belgrano is again before the public. It is quite evident that no matter how sleepy the authorities may be in other parts, in this little suburb they are wide awake. The municipality of Belgrano claim Palermo—houses, ground, trees, etc. The Government, we understand, is in a regular fix; not so much from any want of lawyers to defend them, as from the magnitude of the claim. If the Belgranians succeed, they propose to make a station-house in the garden, and turn the whole concern into a grand casino, with bowling alleys, racket courts, etc

Business in town is frightfully dull, and except we notice one very large transaction in woollens, for the packet, at 65s, and the purchase of a splendid estancia to the west of Salto, by an Irish sheep-farmer, we have nothing doing Orders from the interior are looked for, but do not come. What the people are doing for clothes, etc, in the provinces, we are at a loss to say, since months and months pass over, without a solitary box of carmen being sent up the rivers We must only hope however, that in the coming month, things will brighten a little, for if not, some of our river steamers will be shortly in the vocative case.

Our Cañuelas correspondent writes as follows.

As I told you before, Government promised to give towards the Cañuelas Railway the sum of 4000 dollars. It happened that, on the night of the 17th, a few neighbours passed a part of the night with the Justice, and he explained the matter to us. On account of the split in the Government, the sum in question not come forth yet, but he has not the least doubt but that, when they become reconciled, it will be forthcoming. The architect says that during next month he will commence with the roof, and the public has contracted for the materials.

As for horned cattle, very few will be left about here, after this winter: the camps are getting bare here: pasture were commencing to draw water, and sheep were beginning to fear that we were going to have a repetition of '59, when it pleased God to give us a change for the better. On Friday night it commenced raining, and continued so for a couple of days.

Business is dull, and money very scarce.

Debating Society.

To the Editor of the STANDARD.

SIR.

You are no doubt aware that a great diversity of opinion exists among the thinking men of the age, as to the utility or otherwise of Debating Societies, some very eminent authorities contending, that, instead of expanding or elevating, the mind, or judgment they lead to a puerile flippancy, and scrap knowledge, and dissipate the minds of young men in the superficial study of ephemeral political topics, from which little really useful knowledge can be derived.

Having from considerable experience of the working of a society of this nature in England, formed a different opinion, I was glad to notice that your correspondent of the good idea has opened the subject in your columns so readily and well; I am quite of his opinion that the advantages of a well regulated Discussion Society, cannot be too highly estimated It is essentially a mutual improvement Society, and the most efficient means of inculcating sound principles of political economy and exploding the mystification and evils of mere partizanship.

Of what importance is it to our young men, whether intended for commercial or professional life, to be possessed of an easy, fluent, and methodical utterance of his thoughts? But a greater advantage arises indirectly out of the discussions, if it need to proper account that those taking part in them, are necessarily forced to support their views, by facts and arguments, and this can only be done by research and thought, so that many who are at first dazzled with the accomplishment of an easy delivery, are led to make themselves more studious in that from which they must, in after life, find the advantage.

It is always easy however to theorize, and sketch useful plans on paper. I wish I could be persuaded that your friend's "Good idea" is likely to be realized or meet the support which he solicites upon, I presume he has not recently arrived here, full of that active enthusiasm in the pursuit of every healthy means, of mental and moral recreation, so characteristic of the class of young Englishmen at home, to which he belonged,—and that he has not yet had time to study the peculiar physiological society here after a few years exposure to its climate and habits.

I can easily imagine him, at one of the recent gatheriegs of the British Clerks at the Library seeing the quantity of raw material assembled, and the eloquent silence for which they were remarkable, looking also at the suitable opportunity offered by the rooms of the Library, wondering to himself and others "why have we not a Debating Society?" And perhaps addings-Surely had such an institution been in existence we should not have presented an exhibition such as our recent meetings afforded, when out of fifty or sixty British Clerks, in the possession of all the faculties of manhood, not half a dozen were formed with moral courage to give expression to some simple ideas,in matters of such importance to their welfare.

The result of such reflections only appeared in your valuable organ of British interests, but I grieve to think how can his benevolent "idea" of uniting his fellow clerks by a some what higher and nobler aim than that of the Provident association, is likely to be dispelled. He will find that even good ideas are not seized upon, and turned to profit-ble use, with the same avidity as at home, and that he must encounter an amount of torpid indifference he little dreams of.—Promises of passive support for I should say absence of opposition,] I make no doubt, he will receive in plenty, but where any literary applications or extraordinary effort of the mind is necessary, I fear he would find the members "conspicuous for their absence."

As in General Society too, we have our small sectional divisions and exclusiveness, and within either of these "cliques" assemblies, there is rarely toleration for any body not possessed of the cabalistic signs, and as a consequence any idea however good, not emanating from themselves is more likely to encounter ridicule, than assist in development,—I need hardly say that in making these remarks I do not wish to dissuade your correspondent from his laudable task of awaking the young men from their apathy in all such useful projects as that of the Debating Society, and many other means of rendering the British Library a profitable and agreeable resort my object is simply to warn him in time, of the difficulties he will have to contend against,—I shall be delighted to hear he has overcome these obstacles and succeeded in giving the young men an opportunity of saying that

"Our stile nights
"We spend them not in cards or lust for wine
"But search of deep philosophy
"Wit eloquence and poetry."

I am Sir,
ANONYMOUS.

Cotton in Downing street

I may add that the information here alluded to by Mr. Dugald, as desired by me was with reference to the huge amount of thousands of acres of cotton growing wild in the valley of the Salado, as reported to the Cotton Supply Association at Manchester.

Although the double influence of continued war, and the introduction of British manufactured goods, has stopped the cultivation of cotton, it has, nevertheless, been proved by samples sent from time to time to Liverpool, that the fibre grown in the districts contiguous to the River Plate is of superior quality; and specimens from Catamarca and Santa Fe, rated especially, Cotton of a large size as regards the pod, but of a short fibre, is reported as growing plentifully in the provinces of Entre Rios and Corrientes.

Assuming the continuance of peace, and the possibility of obtaining working people by emigration or otherwise (for this does not exist except partially in the Argentine provinces), it has been suggested to me to impress upon British capitalists, through Her Majesty's Government, the following facts.

1. That between the mouth of River Plate and the city of Corrientes—near to which the rivers Paraná and Paraguay form a confluence—there is a network of islands estimated, at a rough calculation, to possess an aggregate area of from 200 to 300 square leagues, or from 3,000 to 4,000 square miles. This calculation is independent of the islands of the River Uruguay, which is likewise one of the affluents into the River Plate. In fact, the total islands of these rivers may be said to have from 3,000 to 4,000 square miles of rich soil.

2. Those islands possess the advantage of being entirely removed from the seat of war, on either side of the river, in any future disturbances.

3. Ships can be loaded from there without any expense of land transport.

4. The operations which hold good of Europeans not being able to work in the open air within intertropical regions, as at Bahia, Pernambuco, and other parts of South America, do not exist here, for the greater part o field work on both sides of the river is done by Europeans or their descendants.

5. As the water of the River Plate is fresh to its embouchure below Monte Video, no injury need ever be feared to the cotton grown on these islands from the excessive droughts, which on the mainland sometimes cause immense destruction of cattle as well as of crops.

6. It may already be known to your Lordship that cotton is about being cultivated to a greater extent than has been done before in Paraguay, pursuant to a Decree on the subject issued by His Excellency Governor Lopez in the early part of this year. Within the last few years it had likewise been grown to some extent by the French and German colonists at "La Esperanza," about eight leagues interior to Santa Fé, and not far from the banks of the Salado. But it seems to me a more extensive field of operations than these can accomplish is needed to make cotton cultivation in this country a profitable investment; and I regret to find myself obliged to coincide with the impression that the success of any such undertaking depends more on the continuance of peace than on those elements which may already be guaranteed to it, though only in prospective—namely,the favour of the National Government, and the adaptability of the climate.

I have, &c.

Ships of war building for the Royal Navy.

It may not be uninteresting to our readers to know that there are now 53 vessels of war building for the Royal Navy at the various Government and private dockyards, many of which are in a very advanced state towards launching. These vessels comprise the following viz:—6 iron screw ships, 4 iron-cased screw ships, 1 iron-cased screw sloop, 2 iron-case screw gun-vessels, 1 screw steam gun, boats, and 3 paddle despatch vessels. The above vessels show an aggregate of 1,280 guns, are of 23,380 horse-power, and 112,954 tons.

The following are the names of the iron ships now under construction, together with the number of guns, horse power, tonnage, and the place where building:—

	Guns.	H.P.	Tons
Iron Screw Ships.
Achilles	50	1350	6079
Agincourt	50	1250	6021
Hector	32	800	4063
Minotor	50	1250	6021
Northumberland	50	1 50	6021
Valiant	32	800	4053
Iron cased Screw Ships.
Caledonia	50	800	4046
Ocean	50	1000	4010
Royal Alfred	50	800	4045
Royal Oak	50	800	4044
Iron-cased Screw Gun-boat Ships.
Prince Albert	11	500	2529
Iron cased Screw Troop Ships.
Enterprise	4	160	990
Orontes	3	500	2812
Tamar	3	500	2812

As regards the other 38 line-of-battle ships and screw steamers on the docks, many of them are admirably adapted for conversion into shield ships on Captain Coles's principle The Bacchante, 92, at Chatham; the Repulse, 81, at Woolwich; the Robust, 81, at Devonport, and the Zealous, 89, at Pembroke, being in a very advanced state, they require only a comparatively small outlay to iron-plate them. The frigates Belvidera, 51, at Ch tham; the Tweed, 51, at Pembroke; and the Dryat, 56, at Portsmouth, are also admirably adapted for conversion into armour-plated ships, for they would not require the removal of any decks, as would be the case with line-of-battle ships. Of the other vessels in progress, three are intended to carry 36 guns, four 22 guns, one 21 guns, four 6 guns, one 5 guns, six 4 guns, one 3 guns; nine 2 guns, and three 1 gun each.

LOCAL EVENTS.

PROJECTS—Two new proposals have been presented to Government, and are at present pending.

One of them purposes the cleansing of the port and the Riachuelo river; which is very much so dad.

The other is for buoying the Uruguay river. Strange to say, the Uruguay belongs not to Buenos Ayres nor has B. A. anything to do with it, why then propose such a scheme to this Government?

BELGRANO—It appears that, owing to the rainy weather, it will not be possible to go by rail to the races at this town on the 5th October, although in all probability it will be ready a month after.

The station is far advanced, and will be ready before that time

COLONEL RIVAS—This officer is to leave town in a few days, with his regiment, the 3rd of the line, to take command of the Southern frontier, as formerly.

SMALL POX.—It is reported that this disease has become prevalent in some sheep flocks of the district of Quilmes and others to the North of this province.

ASSESSOR.—Dr, Valentin Alsina has presented his resignation of this post. It is believed that the state of his health does not allow him to fulfill the laborious work of this office.

PALERMO.—A dispute has arisen between the Municipalities of Buenos Aires and Belgrano respecting the establishment once the palace of the Dictator.

It belongs undoubtedly to the Municipality of Buenos Ayres, since a special law was passed to that effect.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.—The expenses of this corporation for the ensuing year have been fixed in the sum of $ 295,400, and those of the Public Credit Office in $ 84,216.

NAVIGATION OF THE SALADO.—The special committee appointed by Congress to report on this enterprise have recommended the grant of time and other requests presented by Sr. Rosa.

NEW ENTERPRISE.—It is reported that a company has been made in durance vile a number of natchmen congregated about Maypu and Ensenada streets and took in durance vile a number of ladies [?] of notorious life, who were shipped for Bahia Blanca or Patagones.

We do not know what truth there may be in the statement, if so however we think this step an improvement.

SAN FERNANDO.—The Justices of the Peace has ordered the planting of trees, inclosing of land and other improvements in this pretty town so as to make it an agreeable country residence

IMMIGRATION.—It was stated in Congress that the Government of Cordova had made a contract for the introduction of 4,000 families paying to squares of land to each individual. We think this must be a mistake, that every family is meant.

THE FAIR SEX Versus the Chess Club A witty poetical composition has appeared in one of the daily papers wherein the fair sex complains of not being admitted to the Buenos Ayres Chess-Club

It is evidently the productions of some spirited girl there are many good players in this city.

Members of the ugly sex would have no chance against such competitors. they would be perhaps mated.

FUNCTION.—The function in honor of Nuestra Señora de Captivos was celebrated in the Merced. The church was decently arranged by an immense and highly fashionable congregation The sacred piece, were beautifully gone thro' the responses being rendered with admirable precision

ETRANGER.

On lit dans l'Opinion :

Nous avons en ce moment, pour notre part, trois petites guerres à soutenir au delà des mers : une avec le Mexique, qui n'est pas sans nous procéder ; une autre en Chine avec les Taï-pings. affreux brigands qui meritaient assurément d'être châtiés, bien qu'ils fassent plus de tort au fils du Ciel et au fils d'Albion qu'à la France ; la troisième, en fin, contre l'empereur d'Annam.

Cette dernière guerre paraît heureusement toucher à sa fin. Plusieurs lettres arrivées de Saigon nous apprennent que Tu-Duc, gravement menacé par une insurrection formidable, dirigée par un de ces compétiteurs, s'est décidé à faire à la France des propositions de paix.

Il a adressé, dans ce but, une lettre autographe à l'amiral Bonard et a fait embarquer pour Tourane une ambassade composée de hauts dignitaires, qui de ce port se sont rendus ensuite à Saigon, remorqués par un batiment français. L'amiral Bonard a exigé, avant d'entrer en conférences, la promesse d'un versement immédiat de 100,000 fr. dans les caisses de la colonie.

Le premier versement avait été opéré au départ du courrier. C'est l'indice d'une résolution bien arrêtée du gouvernement annamite.

—Voici quelques détails que nous trouvons dans le Globe, au sujet des fâcheuses nouvelles reçues du nord de la Chine et que nous avons déjà mentionnées hier.

Des avis dignes de foi confirment en effet, que les forces françaises et anglaises ont subi un échec devant les rebelles chinois, et ont été obligés de se retirer à Shanghai. On se rappelle que les alliés avaient délogé des Taï-pings de diverses positions que couvrait autour d'i la ville, et a l'aide desquelles ils inquiétaient le commerce. Jusqu'un 18 nuit, date des dernières nouvelles officielles du théâtre de la guerre, les forces alliées avaient toujours été victorieuses. Mais ces succès viennent d'être malheureusement compromis par une désastreuse rencontre, à la suite de laquelle les alliés ont été obligés d'abandonner tous les points compris sur les rebelles, et de se rétrancher à Shanghaï. Les avis particuliers, qui s'accordent à mentionner cet échec, disent qu'il est bruit d'une perte d'hommes considérable. Cependant, ce ne sont là que des rumeurs sans garantie. A l'exception du fait même de l'échec de nos armes et de la retraite des alliés sur Shanghai, on manque d'informations précises, et il serait oiseux de se livrer à aucun commentaire jusqu'à ce que les dépêches officielles nous apportent les détails de ce pénible incident.

Une nouvelle Colonie française.

Depuis longtemps déjà le bruit de nos armes retentit dans l'extrême Orient et depuis aux populations de ces régions lointaines l'existence d'un plus puissant que le nôtre.

L'empereur Napoléon a compris que la nation Française, toute frivole qu'on prétend quelle est, est trop intelligente pour subir sans murmurer l'espèce de tutelle dans laquelle il la tenait après son retour au trône et il a cherché tous les moyens possibles pour diriger l'attention du public au dehors et le divertir ainsi des questions intérieures de droits et de libertés.

Aux premiers temps de son gouvernement la reconnaissance du parti conservateur, qui travaillait encore au sourcroit de ses pouvoirs, lui permit d'imposer sa volonté au pays sans que celle-ci osât se révolter mais lorsque la Nation, revenue de sa surprise aspira à la vie politique, l'Empereur tua en combattant dans les plaines d'Italie, remportait ses victoires en France; car c'est là qu'il devrait recevoir la véritable récompense de sa politique, il faut le dire, hautement nationale,

Aujourd'hui les idées ne sont plus à la guerre, et l'on sent plus que jamais la nécessité de songer aux intérêts matériels du pays, en évitant toutefois de les asservir sur la base éphémère et immorale de la spéculation et de l'agiotage.

La crise des Etats Unis a produit un Taï-pings en Amérique, en attendant une profonde commotion. Des milliers d'ouvriers se trouvent sans travail et par contre sans pain, car d'un seul coup, la lutte Américaine leur retranche deux grandes ressources. Le Sud grande sous coton et le Nord s'abstient de produire ses soieries.

Un gouvernement aussi habile que celui de L' Napoléon n'a pas dû attendre jusqu'ici ce moment pour chercher un palliatif à un pareil revers et il a joué un coup d'oeil certaineur sur la carte du monde, qu'il a consultée pour trouver un remède à la situation présente.

L'île de Madagascar avec ses immenses ressources a paru au moment attirer l'attention de ce lion à la recherche d'une proie mais le climat mortel de ses côtes et le caractère belliqueux de ses habitans, demandaient trop de sacrifices pour qu'une semblable entreprise put offrir des avantages.

Ce fut dans cette conjoncture que les Annamites emportés par leur fanatisme, immolèrent pour leur malheur plusieurs missionnaires français a leurs Dieux, qui tous reconnaissants qu'ils aient pu se sentir, de cette marque de respect, ne parent cependant les garantir des effets de notre vengeance.

Ce fut alors que la France, sous prétexte de protéger ses droits de l'abyzamie sont les premiers jalons Nous sommes bientôt ces projets en traitant dans un autre article les avantages que la France peut retirer de leur exécution.

ACADEMY OF COMMERCE
GERMAN & ARGENTINE
203—CALLE FLORIDA—203

Directors — J. Debarbieri & S. Meyfosh.

Establishment of that nature as the above-mentioned, have given in Germany and the United States, such well known great advantages, for the last ten years, as to their superiority in every branch of practical instruction, that it seems unnecessary to go into any particulars as to their merits.

The system of instructing by Pestalozzi and Salaman, improved by Diesterweg and many others (names well known throughout the world) have for basis to draw the attention of the scholars to the practical, and attain by that method, in an easy and uniform way, and in a very short time, the most astonishing results.

The understood, by long experience in the first commercial houses in Europe, and afterwards in some of the best schools, confidently believe themselves to be thoroughly competent to establish here such an Academy, and to manage it according to its name.

We take the liberty to inform the public, that the Academy shall be opened on the first of October.

As for the informations required in regard to scholars, [interns and externs] the Directors will give all references.
